Disasters, disruptions: what will be future hold?

A Harris Interactive exclusive poll, in partnership with France 24 and the International Herald Tribune

The latest Harris Interactive / FRANCE 24 / International Herald Tribune poll demonstrates public anxiety in major European countries and the US surrounding the impact of the current economic crisis.

Pessimism reigns and many predict that the next 3 years will bring great personal or national disasters combined with significant economic, financial or political changes.

Overall these findings demonstrate major public concern for the future and identify only Barack Obama as the political leader able to potentially provide a solution.

Results to be released on May 6th on FRANCE 24 in «in the news» and published in the International Herald Tribune on May 7th.

Methodology

The latest poll was conducted online by Harris Interactive, in partnership with FRANCE 24 and The International Herald Tribune, among a total of 6,449 adults (aged 16-64) within France, Germany, Great Britain, Spain and the United-States; and adults (aged 18-64) in Italy, from 25th to 31th march 2009. The data were weighted, where necessary, by age, gender, education, region and Internet usage to make it representative of the general population profile for each country. Propensity score weighting was applied to adjust for respondents' propensity to be online.

The poll explores a number of issues, including:

- Potential national and international disasters within the next 3 years
- Potential personal disasters within the next 3 years
- Changes to implement in the next 3 years
- Crisis Solution?: Which leaders?

Please note that any communication of these results has to be made with technical elements such as: survey methodology, fieldwork dates, name of the agency, sample size

POTENTIAL NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL DISASTERS WITHIN THE NEXT 3 YEARS

Europeans and Americans are feeling pessimistic when faced with the consequences of the ongoing financial crisis over the next 3 years and the impact at a local level in their own country.

Among the events most likely to take place, large majorities predict a rise in protest movements through strikes or demonstrations, most notably in France. Half (50%) of the respondents fear riots in their own country, with France on top at 66% . Respondents are weary of future mass immigration movement into their own countries, with the most palpable levels in Italy, GB and the United States. The rise of political extremism (59%) and religious fanaticism (45%) are also frequently mentioned. Brits demonstrate a particular concern with the latter.

While not cited as much the decrease in human rights / individual freedom remains a significant worry for more than 40% of respondents.

We list several events below. In your opinion, what is the likelihood that each will happen in the next three years?
Base : All respondents

	French	German	British	Italian	Spanish	American	Avg for 6 countries
Certain to happen + probable
Unweighted Base	1,093	1,021	1,164	1,064	1,029	1,078	6,449

Drop in human rights / individual freedom in your country	45%	35%	43%	35%	46%	39%	41%

Europeans and Americans are less focused on future disasters in neighbouring countries, however one third of respondents do predict the future bankruptcy of a neighbouring country.

We list several events below. In your opinion, what is the likelihood that each will happen in the next three years?

POTENTIAL PERSONAL DISASTERS WITHIN THE NEXT 3 YEARS

The latest poll clearly demonstrates the significant levels of worry that European and American respondents are experiencing regarding their own personal situation over the next 3 years.

The findings are unyielding with two major worries shared by half of all respondents: losing retirement pensions and not being able to afford medical treatments (in both cases, this fear is felt most by Italians and French respondents).

Meeting current expenses also appears as a major concern, as well as losing ones job.

A majority of French and Italians worry about no longer being able to properly feed their family.

Worry at its most extreme, in the form of becoming homeless is a genuine concern for one third of respondents, rising to a poignant 1 in 2 in both Italy and Spain.

We again list several hypothetical events below. Keeping in mind the economy and its potential impact on your personal situation, how much do you worry that each will occur in the next 3 years...
Base : All respondents

	French	German	British	Italian	Spanish	American	Avg for 6 countries
worry a great deal + worry some
Unweighted Base	1,093	1,021	1,164	1,064	1,029	1,078	6,449

Inability to afford to go on holiday as in the past	44%	47%	32%	39%	29%	38%	38%
Becoming homeless	36%	19%	28%	49%	44%	27%	34%

Presented with these concerns, fearful respondents are asked to say what the likelihood of each event actually happening to them in the foreseeable future.

Not being able to pay for the same holidays as in the past is reported as most probable followed by an inability to pay for their children's future, a personal car and necessary medical treatments. On this last point, Americans, Germans and French are particularly pessimistic. Spaniards are particularly pessimistic about losing their jobs.

In your opinion, what is the likelihood that you will be in each of the situations described below in the next three years?

CHANGES TO IMPLEMENT IN THE NEXT 3 YEARS

Europeans and Americans believe that the current economic crisis will bring significant results.

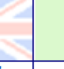

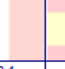

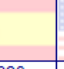

Firstly two thirds of respondents expect a reform of the worldwide economic systems (particularly the Italians and Spanish).

The bleak European and American perceptions cannot be ignored, majorities predict that the current economic crisis will bring important consequences: economic, financial or political upheavals are predicted to occur.

CRISIS SOLUTION?: WHICH LEADERS?

Both Europeans and Americans have the most confidence in Barack Obama to resolve the current global crisis – it is of no coincidence that he is also the most popular and influential leader based on our last Leader Barometer.

This opinion is strongly held by the Italians and the Spanish.

Next in line to provide salvation are Angela Merkel and Nicolas Sarkozy, leaders in whom respondents trust the most to overcome this crisis situation (with the exception of the Britons and the Americans).

Notably, almost 40% of the respondents do not hold any trust in any one leader to resolve the crisis. This figure rises to 56% for the Britons.

According to you, which of the following do you have the most confidence in being able to solve the current economic crisis?
